

What a good paper looks like

Thursday 19th April 2007, 2.00pm – 5.30pm

A taught workshop offered as part of the 2007 Annual Scientific Meeting of the Association of Surgeons of Great Britain and Ireland

Headed by John Murie, Editor-in-Chief of BJS

This is an interactive workbook-based course in two main parts. In the first half you will be shown how to rapidly and accurately appraise scientific publications. The second half will teach you how to use this knowledge when writing your own papers.

- How to review a paper thoroughly and quickly
- How to get your ideas on paper sensibly
- How to make sense of statistics
- Top tips on things you should never do

Course Fee: £50 if registering to attend the Annual Scientific Meeting, £100 if not. Visit <http://www.asgbi.org.uk/manchester/pages/scientific/taughtcourses.htm> to book Maximum 40 delegates so book early Location to be announced